Tax Rate Set; $2.40 Reduction

Large Return from the State More Than Compensates for Mill Tax Loss

Andover's tax rate was announced Tuesday by the Board of Assessors as being $26.80, or $2.40 less than the 1936 rate, despite the fact that expenses for this year are about $7400 higher than those for last year and the valuation is better than a million dollars lower than last year's. An increase in income of something like $66,000 accounts for the drop in tax rate.

The drop in valuation and the increase in income are both caused in large part by the same thing: the elimination of the machinery tax by the state legislature. This is the first year that the valuation loss is recorded, and it is partly made up by increased valuation caused by new construction. In return for the loss the state is granting to communities a refund which it is expected will be nearly $68,000 here. This amount will taper off to nothing in the next few years. When the finance committee figured the possible rate in late February only $195,000 was used as the receipts figure whereas the assessors' present tabulation estimates $271,667.01.

A comparison of the principal items in the tabulation of the rate for the two years follows:

	1937	1936
Tot. Exp.	$677,214.07	$669,830.87
Tot. Rec.	271,667.01	196,486.99

This is what the birdies see when they look down at Main street. It is an ordinary snapshot taken from an airplane by Philip Higgins. About in the center laterally and a little to the rear you'll see the town hall which doesn't look at all bad when you're above and far enough away from it. From there you'll recognize the other buildings, the Musgrove, Barnard, Arco and Press buildings, the banks, the post office, the large academy garage, etc.

Playgrounds Open on Next Thursday

The summer playgrounds at the center, Ballardvale and Shawsheen will open for registration on next Thursday. The first two days will be taken up by registration and mass games, and on Friday night couple races will be held on all three grounds.

The total registration last year was 1872, and the goal for this year is 2,000.

The heavy apparatus will be put on up Tuesday, July 6, at which time the regular schedule will start. The workers will be under the same system as last year, moving around from one playground to the other. Miss Mildred Schruender will have charge at Shawsheen, Miss Caroline Abbot at the central playground and Mrs. Adeline Wright at Ballardvale, with Miss Margaret Davis as general supervisor. James Cole will have charge of athletics, James Bisset handwork, James Doherty tournaments and special activities, Howard Coon art, Mrs. H. Allison Morse music. Leo A. Rafferty will be at the central playground evenings.

At a meeting of the Shawsheen playground association last night it was voted to spend the money realized at the carnival and baseball game last summer for permanent equipment. Mr. Doherty and Henry Simmers, treasurer of the association are to secure some equipment with the money, which amounts to a little less than $200. The playground will be at the Richardson school.

Miss Mabel Marshall, public school teacher, will spend the summer in England.

Will Hold 25th Anniversary Tea

A 25th anniversary tea for Abbie D. Abbott will be held on Monday at the Andover Home for The Aged on Punchard avenue by the board of managers and the residents of the home. On June 28, twenty-five years ago, Miss Abbott entered the home which on the first of June this year had been a quarter of a century in existence. Miss Abbott was the first inmate of the home.

Town Employees Plan to Retire

Police Officer, Librarian, Possibly Tax Collector to Conform to New Law

A number of town employees are eligible for retirement under the new retirement fund plan which goes into effect on July first, and one policeman, Thomas Dailey, has already announced his retirement as of the first of the month. Miss Julia E. Twichell of the library staff will also probably retire. Tax collector William B. Cheever's plans are as yet indefinite, while Cemetery superintendent Fred A. Swanton and Board of Public Works employees Henry Buckley, Frank Holt, Oliver Coates and Sylvester Goodwin are all planning to exercise their right to work two more years.

Patrolman Dailey, a member of the force for fifteen years, will see no more service, since he is at present on his vacation. Under the act which the town adopted at the presidential election last November, policemen and firemen must retire at 65 and may retire at 60. William Rea of the fire department will become 65 next year and must retire then. Patrolman Dailey's retirement leaves Sergeant Saunders the oldest member of the force, and he has four more years before he must retire. After Rea retires Chief Emerson will be the oldest member of the fire department. He is now 60.

Two officers will be appointed when the new civil service list is established. One will be an additional officer and the other a replacement of Officer Dailey.

Tax Collector Cheever has been in the employ of the town for 19 years and is now 77. Under the act all employees not firemen or policemen may retire between 60 and 70 and must retire at 70. Elected officials may become members of the retirement plan if they have worked for the town for four years, and under this plan Mr. Cheever would be eligible for retirement whenever he cares to do so. He has not yet decided if he will retire or take the extra two years allowed to him in case he joins. If he retires before next March his position would be filled by the selectmen. Were he to announce his retirement as of town meeting day, he would of course not run and his successor

Preserving Peace

Arnold Whittredge, master of Calhoun college at Yale, has a sure-fire way of eliminating war, he told the Phillips academy alumni last Friday afternoon. All you have to do, he said, is to stop the manufacture of tin cans.

When this is done, armies can no longer live on canned food, and instead they'd have to live on the land. When winter came, there'd be nothing left on the land for them to live off of, and so they'd have to stop fighting and go home.

"I've sent this plan to the peace conference at Geneva," the Yale man said, "and they must be still considering it for I haven't heard from them."

Crystal Gazing Cal

There was one man who knew enough to get out from under before the stock-market crash of 1929, and that was Cal Coolidge, says Dr. Fuess, the late President's official biographer.

Cal and Grace were having lunch one day with a friend when the friend asked him the reason for his statement: "I do not choose to run in 1928." Cal responded with his customary taciturnity, and Mrs. Coolidge filled in the gap with:

"Poppa thinks there's going to be a depression."

Opens Tea Room at Jaquith Estate

Miss Sally Bodwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Bodwell of 31 Morton street, yesterday noon opened Fieldstones at the old Jaquith homestead on South Main street. Miss Bodwell has transformed the century-old home into a cozy, up-to-the-minute tea room without having lost any of its delightful old typical New England, colonial atmosphere.

There are two dining-rooms in the main house and a large one in what was the barn. Also in the house is a reception room, and upstairs are commodious rest rooms, with sleeping quarters for the girls who will assist Miss Bodwell. A new wing has been added to house the all-electric kitchen with its very up-to-date equipment. One of the most charming rooms in the house is the central dining-room with its knotty pine woodwork, its indoor well with the old-fashioned bucket and its unusual old fireplace. Some of the furniture in the barn has been made out of the wood from the old horsetails.

Well over 100 can easily be accommodated at Fieldstones, and the large grounds allow ample parking space.

One of the lofts in the barn has been taken over by Miss Betty Sherman of Main street who will conduct a gift shop there. Miss Sherman has recently graduated from Miss Chamberlain's school in Boston. She was a member of the class of 1935 at Punchard.

Miss Bodwell graduated from Simmons college. She was at Schrafft's in Boston for three years and then for two more years at the Brittany coffee shop. For the last five years she has been head of the catering department at the Girls' Trade school in Worcester where much of her time has been spent in teaching others. Some of her former pupils she is bringing to Andover with her, and she is also being assisted by a number of local girls, including Flora and Eleanor Raidy, Mary Winkley and Elizabeth Douty. After July first Mrs. Emma Gould Carter will serve as hostess during the summer.

Miss Bodwell will feature a special Thursday night dinner and Sunday night suppers in the barn, in addition to the regular luncheons, teas and dinners. Bridge parties and special lunches may also be held there.

FINED IN HYDRANT CRASH

Crashing into the hydrant near the Cross coal company store in Andover square cost Charles Syiek of Worcester $25 in District court on Monday morning. He pleaded not guilty to a charge of operating to endanger, saying that when he tried to stop his machine, his foot slipped off the brake and hit the accelerator pedal, thus causing him to lurch forward.

Plan Series of Summer Services

Beginning next Sunday, and continuing through July, the 10.45 o'clock service of the Andover Baptist Church will be known as the "Mountain Top Service." A religious service of beauty and help, such a service as will supply religious inspiration for the summer and fulfil the sense of duty and privilege for Protestant people, is planned.

Each service will begin with the theme song. The audience will worship by appropriate participation in the service and in the music. The pastor, Rev. Lorentz I. Hansen, will give a series of brief sermons on Christian Personality—founded on Christ's emphasis on the Individual, and illustrated by today's knowledge of personality. The series is as follows:

June 27th, "The Hidden Forces of Personality—The Divine Spark in the Human Clod."

July 4th, "Mighty Powers in Leash—The Christian and Self Expression."

July 11th, "Accidents of One's Mind—Gathering Grapes from Thorns."

July 18th, "Your Body and You—The Temple of Personality."

July 25th, "The Road to an Integrated Life—Peace at all times."

These services will last about an hour. The church located at the Square, "in the heart of Andover," hopes to have the presence of Andover people, their friends, as well as visitors in Andover.

Boy Scout Wins National Honor

Scout George Brown, Jr., of Andover street, a member of Troop 74, received a citation for heroism at a banquet held on Monday night by the North Essex council in Lawrence, in recognition of a rescue of a Phillips academy student at Pumps pond on January 24. The citation, made by the National Council Boy Scout Court of Honor at Washington, and signed by Daniel Carter Beard, chairman, was the second to be given to a member of North Essex council, the other having been given to Clarence Colmer ten years ago.

The award was presented by Selectman Roy E. Hardy, member of the executive board. Mr. and Mrs. Brown were guests at the affair, as was Mr. Colmer.

President Joseph T. Gagne presided at the affair, and Dr. Nathaniel Stowers gave a talk. Stanley B. Swanton and F. Tyler Carlton were also present as members of the board.

Academy Teacher Weds Miss Chapin

Mrs. Arnold M. Combrinck-Graham (Virginia Chapin)

Delar Studios

Christ Church was the scene of a pretty wedding on last Saturday evening when Miss Virginia Chapin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerard Chapin of Lyman, South Carolina, formerly of Andover, became the bride of Arnold Mills Combrinck-Graham Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Mills Combrinck-Graham of Brooklyn, New York. The groom is an instructor at Phillips academy, having been appointed a year ago.

Rev. Arthur Taft conducted the ceremony at the church, which was decorated with green and white candles on the center aisle. A reception followed at the Phillips Inn, after which the couple left on a wedding trip to Bermuda. After September 15 they will be at home at Cheever house.

The bride wore her mother's wedding dress of ivory velvet brocaded chiffon over satin, with petit rose point lace. Her headdress was also of petit rose point lace and she carried a white prayer book.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Thomas B. Gannett of Milton, the former Ann Cole of North Andover, wore a pale green gown with a darker green velvet sash, while the bridesmaids wore eggshell gowns with the green sashes. They were: Miss Jean Combrinck-Graham of Brooklyn, a sister of the bridegroom; Miss Felicia Lamport of New York, Miss Madge Shelden of New York and Miss Mary Elizabeth Rockwell of North Andover.

William Combrinck-Graham of Brooklyn was best man for his brother. The ushers were: Gerard S. Chapin of Lyman, brother of the bride; Walter Gahagan of Brooklyn, James Logan of Brooklyn, Steven Whitney of Andover, and Walker Whittole of Cambridge.

Hold Clinic on Habit Problems

The Lawrence Habit clinic, open to children from Andover, is held every Tuesday afternoon at two in the Out-Patient department at the Lawrence General hospital, except during the month of August. Furnished by the Commonwealth without charge, it is made available in the hope that through it parents may develop for their children a well-balanced program which gives consideration to mental as well as physical habits, habits that are conducive to good physical health, happiness and economic efficiency.

Some of the problems dealt with at the clinic are temper tantrums, food capriciousness, enuresis (wetting), thumb-sucking, nail-biting, personality difficulties, truancy, stealing, lying, masturbation and poor school adjustment. The clinic is conducted for children of normal intelligence from birth to twelve years and in the case of speech difficulties to sixteen years. On the staff are an expert psychiatrist, psychologist, speech instructor and psychiatric social worker.

Elimination of Machinery Tax Reimbursement Constitutes Serious Threat to Andover's Tax Rate

A tax rate of $26.80—it seems almost too good to be true. And if you analyze it carefully you will find that it's true enough, but there are some elements about it which make it not too good.

This was the first year in which the absence of the machinery tax was reflected in the tax rate, and the reflection was a good one. True the valuation is lopped off a million dollars, which means that your piece of property will have to stand a greater proportion of the cost of running the town government. But this year the state is returning to the town a large sum of money as compensation for that loss in taxable property, and it is that large return that has helped this town bring down its tax rate to the present level.

The whole picture would be very optimistic if it weren't for the fact that the state has no intention at all of continuing this compensation practice indefinitely. The law which abolished the tax on machinery used in the process of manufacture stipulated that there should be a reimbursement to the towns for three years, this in order to give the towns a chance to adjust themselves to a heavy loss in income. That return is to gradually taper off to nothing, and it is that day that we must govern our present policies on. We know that our receipts are going to drop off tremendously at the end of the three years' grace, and we know that that loss can be met only by spending less or by finding additional receipts.

And it's not at the end of three years that we should decide to cut our expenses; it's next year, and the year after. Just because our rate today is $26.80 will be no reason why in next March we should run riot and spend more money than we actually need to. Let us keep that rate down so that more and more homes will be built here thus providing the additional income from new valuation that will help to offset the big loss in income. A low tax rate is one of the best arguments a real estate agent has, and if we can keep it low enough to attract new construction, the end of that three year period will find us partly prepared at least.

Remember: our rate is low, but it's no credit to us. Our total expense has gone up this year about $7500, mostly due to twenty-five percent increase in state tax which is traceable to our last Governor but partly due to our own rising costs. By three years from now that total expense must come down or our tax rate, no longer helped by machinery tax or by machinery tax reimbursement, will be well up in the thirty's.

Town Employees
Plan to Retire

would be the fortunate one at the polls.

Miss Twichell has worked 31 years for the town and is 78 years of age. She had planned to retire before the act was adopted, but now that it has been adopted she will be able to do so and receive some remuneration in her retirement.

Swanton, Buckley, Holt, Coates and Goodwin are all over seventy. The act gives present regular employees the option of joining or not joining, and if they are over 70 and join, they may work two more years, although these extra years will not be counted when their pension is figured. The five above will probably work their two years and then they must retire. Only about ten of the present regular employees are planning not to join.

All employees named after July first must join. Regular employees are those who work seven months a year, and they are eligible for retirement after four years of service. Five percent of their salary will be deducted every week as a contribution to the fund. The teachers are excluded, since they have been under a similar set-up for years. The maximum any employee can receive in retirement allowance is one-half of the average salary over a five-year period, and the amount is also contingent upon the length of service.

None of the present employees between 60 and 70 are planning to exercise their option of retiring.

Legion Juniors Defeat Beverly

Sunday afternoon on the playstead the Andover Legion junior baseball team defeated the Beverly Legion juniors in a closely contested and exciting game by a score of 7 to 6. Warren Deyermond who did such fine relief hurling for the locals last Friday against Lawrence, made his first start on the mound, and got along nicely until the sixth inning. At this stage two hits coupled with two walks and an error allowing the visitors three runs spelled his downfall. Howe was then called in from right field and finished out the game although he had plenty of trouble in doing so. After Beverly had taken a 6 to 5 lead in the first of the eighth the local boys furnished the fans some fine baseball. With two out, Barrett on third base and Bishop on second, Spinney came to bat and after taking a strike laid a bunt down the first base line catching the pitcher and first baseman flatfooted. Barrett scored easily with the tying run and Bishop scored with what proved to be the winning marker, Spinney reaching first base safely for a hit. This play had to be executed perfectly to be successful, and was as smart a squeeze play as had been witnessed on the playstead for many years. Cartay the visiting pitcher turned in a fine game allowing but five hits and striking out 16 batters. The local line-up: Spinney 2b.; Howe, r.f., p.; Walker, s.s.; Noyes, c., c.f.; Burnham, 3b.; Barrett, l.f.; Sanborn, c.f., c.; Bishop, 1b.; Deyermond, p.; Anderson, r.f.

Chapman—David

Miss Charlotte Hughes David, daughter of Attorney and Mrs. Romeo E. David, formerly of Andover but now of Cambridge, became the bride of Max Josselyn Chapman of Oberlin, Ohio, son of Mrs. E. D. Chapman of Elyria, Ohio, at a ceremony held on Saturday afternoon at St. John's Episcopal Church, Arlington. Rev. Charles Taber Hall officiated.

Mr. Chapman has accepted a position as instructor at the University of Tennessee, and after a wedding trip through New England and the south and a summer spent in Ohio, the couple will live at Knoxville. He is a graduate of Oberlin college and the bride graduated from Pynchard high and attended Howard Seminary.

The bride wore a gown of white satin en train with a long veil of tulle capped by a halo of gardenias. She carried gardenias and baby's breath. Mrs. Coxon wore apple green chiffon with matching accessories and a halo turban of tulle. Peach chiffon frocks with tulle halo wreaths were worn by the bridesmaids.

Mrs. Chapman, the groom's mother, played the wedding music on the organ. The bride was given away by her father.

Percival Hewitt, pastor of the Federated Church of Waitsfield, Vermont, and Mrs. Hewitt, became the bride of Raymond Wilson, son of the late Curtis L. and Mrs. Wilson, of Andover, in a military wedding solemnized in the Congregational Church at Waitsfield at three o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

The Rev. Dr. E. W. Sharpe of Brattleboro officiated at the double ring service assisted by Chaplain Chester P. Hanson, of Fort Ethan Allen, Vermont. The bride was given away by her father who pronounced the benediction at the close of the ceremony.

The church was simply but effectively decorated with ferns, palms and large bouquets of garden flowers. Music was furnished by Hernando Lopez, of Manila, Philippines, violinist, a classmate of the groom, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Earl Baird, organist of the Waitsfield church. William Hewitt, brother of the bride, assisted as an usher. Preceding the bride down the aisle was Jean Marie Benson, of Winthrop, dressed in a short white frock, strewing flowers before the bride, who advanced to the altar on the arm of her father, to the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march. There were four bridesmaids, the bride's sister, Ivy Hewitt, Miss Edith Besselièvre, of Manchester, Vermont; Miss Katherine Lyon, of Morrisville, Vermont; and Mrs. Clifford McLam, of East Corinth, Vt. Each wore yellow organdie with velvet sashes of different colors; blue, lavender, green and rust. Their hats were of yellow net with velvet braid to match the sashes and they carried old-fashioned nosegays.

The best man was Lt. Arthur L. Wills, Naval Reserve, of Danby, Vermont. There were four groomsmen; Lt. George Ax, Essex Junction, Vermont; Lt. Ernest Ross, of Danby, Vermont; Lt. S. Budner, Wilmington, Vt., and Lt. Walter Hewitt, brother of the bride, of Waitsfield.

During the service the musicians played "I Love You Truly," and at the close the bridal party marched out to the music of the Mendelssohn Wedding March. The groomsmen formed an arch of sabers under which the bride and bridegroom, matron and best man walked.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the church gave a reception to the guests in the church parlors. These had been elaborately decorated for the occasion with an arch of flowers and evergreens. Receiving with the bridal party were the parents. Mrs. Hewitt was gowned in navy blue net and wore a yellow corsage; while Mrs. Wilson wore periwinkle blue and a white corsage.

The bridal party and family friends then went to the parsonage where an informal collation was served on the lawn. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson left later on a wedding trip, for Truro, on Cape Cod. Her travelling costume was of green wool with beige accessories. On their return they will live in Danby, Vermont, where the bridegroom has headquarters as Assistant District Chaplain of the Second CCC District of the First Corps Area. He is a graduate of Gordon College of Theology, Boston, and for the past two years has been on active duty as Chaplain in the Civilian Conservation Corps Camps.

Mrs. Wilson is a graduate of St. Albans High School and Johnson Normal School, and taught for two years in East Corinth, Vermont, and for the past six years in Manchester, Vermont.

Large Class to Enter Punchard

A ninth grade class of about 160 received promotion certificates to Punchard high school in the Junior High school's closing exercises held in the Memorial auditorium on Monday morning. The certificates were presented by Chairman Frederick C. Smith of the school committee.

The principal feature of the exercises was a brief tableau in tribute to Horace Mann and Mary Lyon, founder of Mount Holyoke. Miss Helen Walsh presented an essay on Horace Mann and there were many very favorable comments on her fine delivery. The orchestra's rendition of the processional also occasioned considerable praise.

Mrs. Frederick G. Smith, state chairman of the national defense through patriotic education of the Daughters of the American Revolution, presented good citizenship awards to Augustin Rapisardi, Warren Richardson and Elinor Houston.

Stage Fright

Dear Editor:

Did you ever have stage fright? There I think is your answer to a recent editorial about expressing one's views in public. We can talk over things with our next door neighbors and friends but when it comes to getting up in town meeting or any other public place to protest against any measure we object to, that takes nerve. We don't care to be called old cranks, old fashioned, old hens, or anything else old, for few of us like to be thought of as "old anything," even though we have advanced to the "years of discretion" and further.

And what results do we get even if we do protest? Remember how long the telephone controversy has raged here about the toll charge to Lawrence? just to mention one subject. If the money used for "investigations" were put in use to get results, we might have things settled.

"OLD HUNDRED"

Smoking and Swearing

DEAR EDITOR:

What's the use of signs? In public conveyances such as trains, cars and buses, there is either a smoking car attached or signs posted saying "No Smoking." But does that make any difference in this modern era where a non-smoker is the exception rather than the rule? It does not.

Recently the writer was coming down from Canobie Lake in a bus when a young man and woman and child got on. "I don't suppose I can smoke in back," said the man who had just lighted a cigarette, and of course "hated to waste it." "Oh I can't see that far," answered the operator of the bus.

As the windows were open it didn't make much difference if the man did smoke, but it would have been the same had the bus been closed tight.

Another law, that has no sign up about it, but which is a law just the same, is about profanity on the public streets. But when the officials of the town and law indulge in profanity in their everyday speech, what's the use of complaining?

You said people had a right to complain, Mr. Editor, so here you are. How much good will it do?

COMPLAINER

Fifty-Five Years Out

TO THE EDITOR:

The month of June has been set aside as the time for the severance and the reuniting of the bonds that bind us in friendly ties. It is a time of outgoings and incomings, a time of sad good-byes and a time of gladcome welcomes, good-byes by youth and welcomes by elder men.

Youth full of faculty, ambition, and high expectancy, newly-rigged with learning, weighing anchor for a maiden cruise upon an uncharted sea; older men frightened with experience and more or less scarred by storms returning with grateful hearts to drop anchor once again in its early land-locked harbor.

Few joys of life overtop the joys incident to these returning voyagers. Then for a brief period the changes wrought by time are debarred entrance; then they forget their gray hair or want of hair, their furrowed brows and corpulent proportions, their successes and their failures and flinging all care to the winds, once again enter into alliance with their youth.

The acid test of experience has served to enhance the value of these cloistered seats of learning and to sharpen the edge of appreciation for those noble professors whose characters, far more than their teaching, have given formative direction and perpetual inspiration to their lives.

The friendships formed in the classroom also have strengthened by time. In the light of a larger vision their intrinsic value has been more justly appraised. Therefore, it cannot be wandered at if these long separated voyagers, when once again they meet face to face and grasp one another by the hand in the old familiar harbor they fling dignity to the breeze and give unhindered flow to youthful enthusiasm. Such behavior, in a marked degree, save when the remembrance of their lost comrades elbowed its way into thought, signalized the reunion of the class of '82 of Andover Theological Seminary on Wednesday, June 15th.

It was the desire of several that the reunion take place in old Bartlet Hall, that Waterloo of half a century ago where under generalship of Professors Thayer, Smith, Mead, Gulliver, Churchill and that prince of teachers, Prof. Park they fought the profoundest problems of existence: Ontology, Cosmology, Epistemology, Science, Religion, Homiletics, History, Elocution and experimental preaching were one and all brought into requisition to arm them to meet their self-chosen foe,—the evil in the world.

It was during their three years together that unpredictable rumblings in the theological sky first disturbed their traditional faith and subsequently issued in that storm of controversy now known as the "Andover Controversy." Since that early date, what profound changes have registered the workings of the public mind! Changes not only in our social and financial structure, but more important than these, the change in the attitude of people toward God, toward the church, and toward those fundamental moral certitudes which condition the perpetuation of our whole civilized structure. Along with these changes the temper of these modern days has little use for the older generation. Hence, we older ministers have been shunted on to the siding permitted only to watch the traffic of life go thundering by. So here we are! But think not we sit with folded hands disgruntled and dispirited. On the contrary, the soul of us that never knows age, is daily making new conquests in the realm of the spirit. Sustained by a gnawing hope we courageously face the future in expectation of a larger and a happier field of endeavor.

Contracts for summer work were let and a number of departmental employees reappointed last night at a special meeting of the school board. The Shawshen school gymnasium floor job was awarded to Philip Hardy with a bid of $1269, and the electrical work was awarded to Ernest Edwards with a figure of $93, making a total of $1362 to come out of the $1400 special appropriation.

Painting of the exterior woodwork on the Shawshen school was awarded to James Kidd at $480.

All the janitors were reappointed, with the three who were named last year being given increases of about a dollar a week in accordance with the usual practice. Miss Reta Atkinson was given a $100 increase for professional study. Herbert Lyle was reappointed attendance officer, and Mrs. H. Allison Morse and James N. Cole reappointed to noon-hour duty at the central plant, with Miss Katherine Walsh taking the place left vacant by Mrs. Adeline Wright, newly appointed teacher. Mrs. Grace Bodwell was named to noon-hour duty at the West Center.

Miss Mary Winkley was reappointed clerk to Mr. Hamblin, who sent the committee a note praising her work very highly. She was given a fifty dollar raise. Miss Evelyn Rutter was appointed clerk to the junior high principal at $650 for the forty-week period. A new clerical salary scale was adopted with superintendent's clerk's salary to range from $750 to $1150 and the clerks for the two school principals from $650 to $850. Miss Rutter, who has just graduated from high school, has done considerable clerical work at the school this year in connection with her commercial work.

The final report for the cafeteria for the year shows a cash balance of $58.10 with all bills paid. There is an inventory amounting to $36.63. The management of the cafeteria for next year was referred back to the advisory sub-committee.

"Loyalty and Devotion" Helped England Forget "What Had Passed"

Following are some excerpts from a letter received recently by Miss Kate Swift from a cousin in England, describing the Coronation parade:

When I saw the queer stores of England I could hardly believe it true. Two days I spent in Southampton. Then, to Winchester, lovable place, its steep street strung with flags and bright with colour. The small villages have been the prettiest things in all England, so personal, so lively. One sensed, too, an effort. What had passed was not to spoil what lay before. It was at Guildford that the Bishop from his pulpit said, "Under these sunny skies we walk in a cloud." There was a reference to Edward, and then he instructed his people, finally, "Here is our way. Let us go together." And England and the Empire went through an unforgettable day in the weeks to come.

On Monday before Coronation day I came up to London, and found lodging within the so-called Coronation area—those streets which lay within the line of parade. It poured. I gave up any half-shaped plans I might have had to see the procession. I did not dare stand, and many of the stands were drenched. Late in the day the sun came out. Passing by a shop in Regent Street I saw they were erecting seats. There I took one quite inexpensive, and was comfortable. Never shall I see anything quite like it again. The air was vibrant with feeling. In the grey of the early morning London was moving. It was four when my ship friend set out on foot to go through St. James Park, to her Abbey seat. It was five o'clock, when I went out to a sound of hurrying feet. Figures emerged—no traffic was allowed on the streets for 24 hours. We moved through streets strung with banners. Great bowls of bright tulips were on balcony, balustrades; pots of flowers stood in doorways. Through the stillness, for the London roar was quiet, we went, bent on a common end, loyalty and devotion.

It is rather remarkable when you come to think of it, that all the British Empire is held, not by power—the colonies are independent—but by an invisible bond which shapes itself—the Crown—the one symbol of a united nation. From all directions they came. The Australian troops passed me on way—tannish straw hats on their heads—turned up on one side with a feather. Occasionally a peeress came out to walk a way to her carriage. Men in evening clothes passed me. Shortly, fashionable Mayfair was behind me, and as I approached Oxford Street and Piccadilly the scene changed. The workers and the waiters appeared. Piles of mackintoshes on the pavement proved to be covered piles of people. They had been there over night. Some with spirit lamps heated milk, some wrapped in papers sat leaning over against another, asleep. The curbs were ten deep. Long iron rails ran into Piccadilly Circus. There I walked around Cupid,—his base well boxed against damage,—and on to my window seat on the second floor. It was in the curve of the street, a little iron balcony was before me, and I could lean forward through the long windows and see from one end of Regent street to the other at Oxford Circus.

From six o'clock the troops passed through in endless lines, lining the streets. Crowds on the sidewalks, next police every ten feet. Every third man carried a white bag on his hip—a first aid kit. Nurses passed, doctors were stationed at intersecting streets. Presently in front of police lined up the troops—shoulder to shoulder—as far as I could see, and on six miles. A police car passed; once a rider in crimson and gold, a great feather curving over his helmet rode by. It was constant movement. Not until one thirty did the troops begin to pass. It was like a mediaeval pageant. Old uniforms came out, red, and gold. The brilliance of the Indians with their jewels; the old glass coaches like a fairy tale, their crimson uniformed footmen standing on behind. Detachments of world war men, with rows of medals across their breasts. Now and then a mounted band, white, gold, red, magnificent with brass, sounding cymbals, and drummers, twirling their drumsticks to perfection.

Last of all came the royal coach, gold and glass. The queen, on my side, was as lovely as a queen should be. Plump she may be, but she carried with her jewels and ermine, distinction and a royal dignity and beauty.

Horsemen and beautifully groomed horses followed on; rain fell, the crowd broke, and a little after four I set out for home, and at five again walked up Curzon Street to my room, a bright fire, and a bowl of fresh tulips. My landlady has been very kind to me. She, too, has "lived in the states."

Other things I have done since, the usual London sights. The line into the Abbey has been a mile long. One waits five hours or more and that is too long for me.

Colonial Theatre of Two Weeks Ago Has Now Become History

Today these pictures are history; two weeks ago they weren't. Since they were taken most of the old Colonial Theatre has disappeared to make way for a more modern motion picture house. The above views show the old open-air lobby which has been completely torn out, the interior as shown from the stage and the screen as it once was seen by the audience. New seats, air-conditioning, a mezzanine floor are to be features of the new building.

Two Men Jailed in Family Neglect

A local man was committed to the house of correction for six months on Monday when a suspended sentence for that length of time was revoked by the District court. The sentence had been pronounced on a neglect of family charge, and he was brought in Monday on a drunkenness charge which was filed.

Another local man was also given a six months' sentence in the house of correction on a neglect of family charge. Capable of earning good money at his trade, he had been following the horses and was brought back from the Agawam track on Sunday by Sergeant Ray Hickey and Officer John Campbell.

Francis J. Leonard of Manchester, N.H. arrested last Saturday night by Officer Carl Stevens on charges of drunkenness and operating under the influence appeared at the same session, pleading guilty to the former, not guilty to the latter charge. His case was continued until this morning.

It's always best to be on the safe side. Inquiry finds that a new "absolutely fire-proof" building has been insured.

He followed the complete theological course, including three summers of study at the University of Chicago and one year of graduate work in the Harvard Divinity school. His first pastorate was at Exeter, N. H., and since then he has served Unitarian churches at Scituate, Mass., Hingham, Mass., and Dunkirk, N. Y., which he resigned after a five years' pastorate to accept the call to the North Parish church of North Andover.

Besides his deep interest in every phase of religion, Mr. Heyn has retained his early interest in art, and he is an accomplished baritone singer.
